

Come see what's playing at the Garden.

Now showing: Insect-A-Mania! Come see our gigantic spider and web, 20-foot dragonfly, colossal praying mantis and enormous red ants, all stunningly crafted from bark, branch and vine by sculptor Dave Rogers. Children will enjoy learning about these and other creatures of nature with our self-guided discovery tours, educational games, insect rubbings and identification, and a fascinating look at a working beehive.

This summer, music will fill the air on Sunday afternoons at 4 pm. Visitors can spread their blankets, open their picnic baskets and relax on our cool lawn to the sounds of our Sunday Supper Serenades, co-sponsored with the Manhattan School of Music.

SUNDAY SUPPER SERENADES

JULY 16 MANHATTAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC JAZZ ORCHESTRA BIG BAND, SWING, JITTERBUG	JULY 23 LENAHAN, CELTIC ROCK, JAZZ, BLUES	JULY 30 MANHATTAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC CHAMBER SINFONIA ORCHESTRA: MOZART TO GERSHWIN
--	--	---

Our 250 acres of gardens and meadows, woodlands and wetlands, forests and waterfalls are alive with annuals, music and the larger-than-life bugs of Insect-A-Mania. Summer at the Garden is supported by The Xerox Foundation. For event information, directions and garden hours, call 718-817-8700, ext. 15. We're just 20 minutes from midtown by Metro North, car, subway or bus. Come see what's playing at the Garden. The New York Botanical Garden in the Bronx. Hurry, performances are limited.

The New York Times Company Foundation, Inc. is a leadership sponsor of the Garden's programming for children and families.

The New York Botanical Garden, Bronx, New York